what caused the strange sounds in the interior.

The novel trip of the six young ladies has been much talked about, but as they avoided the crowded thoroughfares they were ignorant of the interest taken in them, and were much astonished and slightly irritated when they learned that bets had been made that they would not make 400 miles in the month. The girls end their trip now because three of their number will begin their school-days early in September. This demand was made in earnest, and it would be pressed upon the people's attention. If the ground was unbroken, as a matter of public discussion, it was all the more the purpose of the Independent Republicans to draw a broad furrow through it at this time and trust to the good sense and honest purposes of the people.

Alleged Swindling.

BELLE BOYD, THE NOTORIOUS CONFEDERATE SCOUT, IN A NEW RÔLE.

PRILADELPHIA, August 27.—For months a female alleged swindler, who has baffled the combined intellect of the new detective system at Fifth and Chestnut streets, has been carrying on a series of "crooked" operations in this city. She has, however, at last been discovered, though not by any ingenuity on the part of the police authorities. Some few months ago an attractive lady visited a grocery-dealer near Twentieth street and Washington avenue. She ordered goods to the amount of $11, and in payment therefor tendered a check for $25. The grocery-man, not thinking that such a ladylike person would be guilty of dishonesty. grocery-man, not thinking that such a lady-like person would be guilty of dishonesty, handed her, after keeping $11 for the goods, $14. The goods were ordered to be delivered at the house of one of his best customers, and his astenishment, nav. well customers, and his astonishment may well be imagined when on going there the lady of the house refused to take the goods, as she bad not ordered them.
